

Competition places students a cut above the rest

BRISBANE School of Hairdressing (BSH) believes providing a platform for innovation is a crucial element in any hairdressing curriculum.

BSH champions creativity and recently staged a Cut and Colour and Long Hair Fantasy competition among its students. Co-sponsored by Wella, GHD, and Lina Wood, the competition encouraged students to explore avant-garde hairdressing.

It also provided a trial platform for those planning to enter the national competition arena.

Australian Hair Fashion Awards Queensland Hairdresser of the Year Craig Smith and Fruition's creative colourist and creative director Kate Rawnsley and Wella Professional customer development manager Jemma Goos judged the competition. "I was truly amazed by the standard of work, particularly in the Cut and Colour category. I can honestly say the skill level of work on display represented that of a colourist with far more experience," Ms Rawnsley said.

BSH has campuses in the Queen Adelaide Building in Brisbane's CBD and at Australia Fair on the Gold Coast.

Dare to dream at Ikin Dance

AFTER years of dreaming of making it big, Yandel Davis has realised her dreams.

Ms Davis graduated from Ikin Dance in 2009 and has not looked back since. She has performed on cruise ships and with encouragement from her Ikin Dance teachers, Ms Davis auditioned for the 2011 tour of Michael Jackson: the HISTORY Show.

The tribute concert is currently touring Australia before heading to South Africa.

"Current performers in the show, Jake Withers and Tiffany Sinclair, are also from Ikin Dance so I was thrilled to hear I would be joining them on the South African leg of the tour," Ms Davis said.

There are limited places available in Ikin Dance's 2012 course intake so call now to book an audition with director Anthony Ikin. Ikin Dance also has a 15-week taster course which runs Friday nights from 6pm-9pm.
